Socio-Economic Review (SER) aims to encourage work on the relationship between society, economy, institutions and markets, moral commitments and the rational pursuit of self-interest.

Journal Citation Reports ranked SER 8th in Political Science, and 11th in Sociology according to its 2012 Impact Factor of 2.059.

Call for proposals:
Special Issues of Socio-Economic Review in 2016 and 2017

Deadline: October 1, 2014

Socio-Economic Review (SER) is pleased to invite proposals for either of the thematic Special Issues to be published in 2016 and 2017. A proposal should contain the following information:

1. The names, contact details, and positions of the proposed Guest Editor(s) together with brief biographical details.

2. The title of the proposed special issue.

3. A one-page summary “call for papers” indicating the main theme, key topics, and methodological foci for submissions to the Special Issue. Please provide a list containing short abstracts of any potential invited contributions, information about the authors and indication of their commitment.

4. A two or three page description of the rationale behind the proposal, its planned scope, its innovative nature in relation to existing published work, and its likely relevance for readers of Socio-Economic Review. Please read the Editorial Policy Statement of SER via the following webpage: http://ser.oxfordjournals.org/

5. An indication of whether the proposal should be considered for 2016 or 2017. We recommend 2016 for topics where an interesting set of potential papers is already established, for example through a successful SASE mini-conference or similar workshop or conference event. Applicants requiring a longer lead time toward initial submissions should consider 2017.

Key Information:

The Editors of SER will assess proposals for the Special Issue. Once accepted, Guest editors of Special Issues will be responsible for ensuring that authors adhere to SER’s editorial policy and formal guidelines. Guest Editors are encouraged to use a mix of invited and open submissions for the Special Issue, working to actively solicit quality submissions. However, all manuscripts for the Special Issue must undergo double-blind peer review according to normal SER standards.

The word count of each paper should be between 6,000 and 10,000 words. The total word count of an issue will not usually exceed 70,000 words (including refs, notes, diagrams and tables).

Guest Editors will be asked to work roughly according to the following timetable for the 2016 special issue:

November 2014: Issue of the public “call for papers” for the Special Issue.
April 2015: Deadline for paper submissions. Beginning of review process.
April 2016: Deadline for submission of production-ready final manuscripts.

The final timetable for a 2017 special issue will be determined in conjunction with the guest editors, but would be roughly as follows for Issue 2 in 2017:

November 2014: Issue of the public “call for papers” for the Special Issue.
January 2017: Deadline for submission of production-ready final manuscripts.

Proposals and queries may be sent to chief editor Gregory Jackson at: gregory.jackson@fu-berlin.de